CHANGES OF MARRIAGE

When a fine young gul reaches the age of fifteen or sixteen years, she begins to think of the kie as keen as a star in a frosty night, over mysterious subject of matricony; a state the delights of which her youthful imagination shadows forth in the most captivating form. It is made the topic of light and incidental discourse among her companions, and it is recurting down the egg-shells to boil. At last red to with increasing interest every time it is be saided with the voice of a very old man, brought on the table. When she grows a little older, slie ceases to smatter about matrimony, and thinks more intently onthe all important subject. It engrosses her thoughts by day and at hearing the child speak. But she con- her dreads by night; and she pictures to hertrived to put the poker in the fire, and to self the felicity of being, wedded to the youth for ensurer without making any wonder at the flame. Sie aurveys herself in the mirror, and as it generally tells a flattering tale, she turns from it with a pleasing conviction, that her said the little imp, whose supernatural gift beauty will enable her to conquer the heart of of speech now proved beyond question the most obdurate, and that wheever else way that he was a fairy substitutes the decima state of single blessedness, she is des-I wish the poker was red, thought Mrs tined to become ere many years roll by, a hap-

The table to which we are about to draw their attention is extracted from the ' report of the select committee of the House of Commons on the laws respecting friendly societies.' It was drawn up by Dr. Granville, a physician and acconcheur of very extensive practice, connected with several public institutions in the metropolis, I The doctor, whose attention had been directed to the statistical questions of the increase of papalation among the poor thought that the public institutions to which he belonged might be made available in obtaining the information which be wanted. For this purpose he put questions to the females who, from inne to time, caine under his care, to ascertain the carliest age at which woulan of the poorer classes marry. He submitted to the committee the registered cases of 876 women's and the fullowing table; derived from their answers as to the age at which they respectively married is the first ever constructed to exhibit to females their chances of marriage at various ages. Of the $76 females, they were married 3 at 13, 11 at 13, 16 at15, 43 at16, 45 at17, 76 at18, 115 at 19, 118 ni20, 36 at21, 85 at22, 59 at23, 53 at24. 36 at 25, 24 at 26, 28 at 27, 22 at 29, 17 at 29, 9 at 30, 7 at 81, 5 at 82, 7 at 35, 5 at 84, 2 at 35, 0 at $6,2, at $7; 0 at 35; F at 89, 12 36 A5111

It is to be storne in mind, that the females. whose relativingages at the time of their marriage are above exhibited, were all af the loveor classes. Among an equal number from the middling or, the larguer classes, we should not probably find so many as 195, or more than one fifth married under the age of 19 cor so fest as 1-16th part after 28; or only 1-30th part after 80 Jeen Subalifil

From this curious statistical table, our fair thaders may from a pretty accurate judgment of the changes which they have of entering inlo the holy state of matrimony, and, of enjoying the sweets (we say pothing of the bitters) of wedded love. They ought always, however, to remember, that such of them as, independently of personal charms, possess the powerful recommendation of profess the more described as where whatever may be their species as a superior whatever may be

I love the dews of night, - I love the howling wind, I love to hear the tempest sweep O'er the billows of the deep: .. For nature's saddest scenes delight The melancholy mind.

Autumn! I love thy bower With faded garlands drest: How sweet alone to linger there Where empests ride the midnight air. To snatch from ear h a fleeting hour. The Sabbath of the breast.

Autumn! I love thee well: Though bleak thy breezes blow, I love to see thy vapours rise, And clouds roll widely round the skies. Where from the plain the mountains swell And foamy torrents flow.

Automn thy fading flowers . Drop but to bloom again; So man, though doom'd to grief awhile, To hang on fortune's fickle smile, Shall glow in heaven with nobler powers, Nor sigh for peace in vain.
