THE MILLION'S JOURNAL
CORRESPONDENT FROM NEW YORK.

SLAVERY

The following is a extract from an article in the New York Times, delivered by the Hon. F. H. Giddings, before the Vermont Convention.

In speaking of the state of slavery, Mr. Giddings said:

The condition of the slaves in the Southern States is one of degradation. The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied. The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.

The negro is not only a slave in the sense of being held in absolute servitude, but he is also a slave in the sense of being a degraded human being. He is not considered a member of society, and is treated as a brute. His rights are trampled upon, and his liberty is denied.